

Hello everyone, and a happy Friday to you all!

What a wonderful week we have just had! Here are just a couple of highlights – keep checking facebook to see more updates from our week.

World Book Day

It was lovely to celebrate reading and books with the children on Thursday. Miss Parkinson and Miss Brown organised a wonderful day of fun activities and reading. I missed the action but caught up with everyone on Friday and read them a bit of one of my favourites – How to Train Your Dragon, by Cressida Cowell.

Forest School Morning

Another delightful addition to the calendar. Mr Marchant planted 1200 trees in his meadow nearly 40 years ago. As well as this, he planted a small clump of snowdrops. Over those years, he has split and replanted them every year. This year, we got to join in!

Thank you to all the parents who came to join us. It really summed up what Anstey is all about – happy children learning and experiencing the world around us with our community. We are so lucky to have these opportunities, and I'm glad so many of us were able to make the most of the morning! Thank you to Mr Marchant and Mrs Hubbard.

This week we are sending big congratulations to:

Daisy in Fledglings for her wonderful enthusiasm!

Ronnie in Little Owls for working hard in maths lessons!

Cienna in Wise Owls for her super maths work on converting fractions.

Well done to all of you!
