

Happy Friday everyone!

What a great week! It's been busy here at Anstey HQ. A few bits of news from me as we kick off the half term.

Social Media

Check out our page on Facebook for a little video of some of the highlights from last half term. We aim to have a new one every week. Please share if you can – we want to show everyone how amazing our children are and what a wonderful, nurturing school this is!

Christmas concert preparations

This week we began working on the music for this year's Christmas event. It's a special one this year – being held in St George's Church in Anstey. We will also be joined by pupils from Edwinstree Middle School and Freman College! This is shaping up to be a truly magical event. There will be singing, instrumental playing, poetry and even some acting.

Please save the date – Wednesday 10th December at 4.30pm.

This week we are sending big congratulations to:

Anna in Wise Owls for working so hard on her reading at home and in school.

Oscar in Little Owls for producing amazing science work!

Aida in Fledglings for working hard on her letter formation.

We are very proud of you!

The Marble Jar has been reset to zero this week – let's see if we can get to 100 marbles by the end of the term!
